Abbott government's decision not to proceed with the sale of Australia Post

The union representing postal workers welcomed Finance Minister Mathias Cormann announcement yesterday that the Abbott government had decided not to proceed with the sale of Australia Post.

"We welcome the Finance Minister's statement to the Senate Budget Estimates and the Abbott government's recommitment not to sell Australia Post after Communications Minister Malcolm Turnbull's promise last year that Australia Post will not be sold."

"Martin O'Nea, Divisional Assistant Secretary said now our focus is on protecting letter services and community service obligation which serves Australia so well."
